WELL WOMAN EXAM / PREVENTATIVE WELL VISIT

While healthcare insurance continues to evolve, one thing remains the same, the annual well-woman exam. The well-woman exam, also known as a yearly or preventative visit, occurs when a patient presents for a routine examination of the breasts and pelvis with or without a screening PAP smear. This service is permissible by insurance companies only once per year. Each insurance company dictates their own terms as to whether this service is permitted per calendar year, year to date, or whether it is member driven service. In most cases, the insurance company will cover and pay for 100% of the services rendered.

If, for any reason, a patient presents to the office with any other concerns and/or complaints at the time of the preventative exam (such as a yeast infection, urinary tract infection, bleeding, polyps, cysts, etc.) and receive on-site treatment, a prescription and/or recommendations your chart will be documented to reflect the problem and you are no longer consenting to only a well-woman exam. In such cases, if any bloodwork is drawn or vaginal cultures are taken, you will be advised of the situation, the specimens will be submitted to your designated lab and you will be responsible for any charges incurred due to deductibles and/or coinsurance. This cost cannot be estimated by our office, this is purely a driven cost between your insurance company and lab.

I have read the above information and acknowledge and understand my responsibilities as a patient.
